Concert Series Season Tickets Being Mailed

Season tickets for the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra's concert series are being mailed this week and the President of the Symphony Association, David Hughes, has issued an invitation to attend the first concert of the MONTEREY series and bring a guest. One free ticket will be issued with each $4.00 ticket purchased. for the performance at Monterey Peninsula College's Gym-Auditorium, Sunday, Oct. 6, at 8 p.m.

The Carmel concerts were sold out early in the summer with many unfilled orders for season tickets turned away. In fact, more than $900 had to be refunded for lack of seats. It is hoped that the free guest ticket will introduce the concerts at the College to many who have never experienced the fine acoustics and pleasant atmosphere in that hall.

The concert is repeated Monday, October 7th at Sunset Center, Carmel, and Tuesday, October 8th at Madonna del Sasso Church, 320 East Laurel Drive, Salinas. All performances are at 8 p.m.

The first concert of the Orchestra's 29th season brings its distinguished Conductor, Haymo Taeuber, back to the podium for his seventh season with the Orchestra, and his 46th year as a conductor. He has chosen Carl Maria von Weber's "Euryanthe" Overture for the opening work.

Concert Pianist, Carol Colburn, will be featured with the Orchestra in Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 2 in B flat Major. Miss Colburn, a young American artist with a Master of Musical Arts degree from Yale University, has toured as a recitalist and concert soloist with orchestras and chamber groups in the United States and abroad.

Tchaikovsky's familiar and beautiful Symphony No. 6, the "Pathetique", will complete the program.

Under Taeuber's direction, the Orchestra has steadily developed and improved in quality. It has been recognized for its excellence and service to the area by grant awards from the National Endowment for the Arts, and the California Arts Commission.

Tickets are available at Gadsby's Music Store, and Dickers Department Store and Salinas Music Center in Salinas, and at Abinante's, Lily Walker Records and Music, Carmel Music, Recreation Offices on Military posts, the Symphony Office, Sunset center, Carmel and at the Box Office the night of performance.

A few Carmel seats may be available subject to being released by those who cannot attend. Call 624-8511 Carmel or 424-9127 Salinas for information and reservations.

Regional Offices to Help Senior Citizens

Three regional offices have been designated by the California Office on Aging "to assist area and local agencies as well as senior citizens themselves in finding the right answers to questions about aging," State Director on Aging J.M. Stubblebine announced recently.

Ms. Joanne Hogue, manager of the Southern Regional Office, 107 South Broadway, Room 2140, Los Angeles, and her staff will coordinate services to seniors in Inyo, Mono, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside, Imperial, Orange and San Diego Counties (Telephone: (213) 744-2203).

The Valley Regional Office, located in Suite 385, 455 Capitol Mall, Sacramento with Kenneth Swinford as manager has responsibility for services, programs and projects in Lassen, Modoc, Shasta, Siskiyou, Tehama, Trinity, Butte, Colusa, Glenn, Plumas, El Dorado, Nevada, Placer, Sacramento, Sierra, Yolo, Yuba, Alpine, Amador, Kern, Kings and Tulare counties (Telephone: (916) 322-5710).

Employers Must Have Workmen's Compensation

Hundreds of California employers are facing investigation and possible criminal charges for failure to carry workmen's compensation insurance.

Robert E. Howard, State Labor Commissioner, announced recently that his staff has begun investigating 1508 employers suspected of violating labor laws requiring workmen's compensation protection for employees.

The Labor Commissioner, who is also Chief of the Division of Labor Law Enforcement (DLLE) in the State Department of Industrial Relations, announced that he had filed criminal complaints against 48 California employers in the year ended June 30, 1974, because they did not carry workmen's compensation insurance.

Howard also said his new program of direct contacts with California employers caused another 1,974 to immediately sign up for the protective insurance coverage.

DLLE, under a new program headed by Marie Melrose Monti, senior deputy labor commissioner, now regularly sends notices to about 72,000 new employers annually, warning them about the mandatory insurance coverage. It was in the course of those direct contacts between May and August of this year that the 1508 employers were discovered to be breaking the law. They had failed to respond to a demand for legal certification of the insurance protection for employees.

In the deposition required of new employers, DLLE asks them to certify the name of their insurance carrier, the policy number, date of expiration of the policy, and the employees, if any, who may be exempted from coverage.

Howard pointed out that "failure to carry workmen's compensation is a misdemeanor that could subject an employer to criminal prosecution. If an employee were injured, the employer would be subject to the assessment of unlimited civil damages."

The State Labor Commissioner said that the crackdown by his division has revealed that real estate brokers, in particular, seem unaware that they are required to carry workmen's compensation coverage on their salesmen.

Howard said his investigators found that business partners also tended not to carry the protective insurance, mistakenly believing they are exempted. Howard, however, explains that a working partner in a business, one who is paid for his services, is considered an employee of the partnership and must be covered by workmen's compensation insurance. Under Labor Code Section 3359, this is true even though he may also receive profits from such a partnership.

First Year

Job Training Program Celebration Scheduled

The successful completion of the first year of job training and job placement by the Salinas branch of the Opportunities Industrialization Center-Centro de Entrenamiento Para Trabajo (OIC-CET) of the Central Coast Counties will be celebrated on Sunday, October 13, at the Salinas Posse Grounds with a First Anniversary Fiesta, announced Salinas branch manager Dan Mesa.

The fiesta will begin at noon and end at 6 p.m. Over 5,000 people are expected to attend the festivities, at which there will be free music and dancing, door prizes, pinatas, and other entertainment and displays. Food and refreshments will be on sale. The Salinas Posse Grounds is located on North Natividad Road in Salinas.

The Salinas OIC-CET opened in October 1973, and began training in January of this year. It will train and place over 224 people in well paying jobs this year. The average salary for OIC-CET graduates is $3.32 per hour.

Those trained at OIC-CET are people who were previously unskilled, unemployed or underemployed, and in many cases, migrant workers.

OIC-CET is a non-profit job training and placement agency. There are three other OIC-CET branches besides the Salinas branch. Gilroy and San Jose house the other three training sites.

Skills taught at the Salinas OIC-CET include industrial skills, office skills, grocery checking, automotive service mechanics, transmission mechanics, brake and front end mechanics, and truck-diesel mechanics.

In addition to skill training, OIC-CET students receive specialized job placement assistance and follow-up counseling for a two-year period after training is completed.

Early this year, OIC-CET of the Central Coast Counties was rated, in a study by the National Chicano Social Planning Council, as one of the best job training agencies in the nation.

The Council, which is funded by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), identifies and helps stimulate effective training and education programs for Chicanos throughout the country.

The report commended the OIC-CET development of "the whole person," not merely the teaching of a technical skill. OIC-CET students are taught according to the mottos, "We help ourselves," and, "Everybody can be somebody."

In addition to the Council report this year, in 1972 the Economic Development Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce judged OIC-CET of the Central Coast Counties as one of the "most effective" job training organizations in the country.

OIC-CET of the Central Coast Counties, of which the Salinas OIC-CET is a branch, was founded in San Jose in 1967. It was an outgrowth of the national OIC program that was started by the Rev. Leon Sullivan in Philadelphia in 1964.

"The fiesta is the opportunity for the OIC-CET alumni, staff and students to get together with the public to thank them and industry for their support during our first year here," emphasized Dan Mesa, Salinas OIC-CET branch manager.

He added, "It is a chance to make people aware of how a successful training program can change lives for the better."

The Salinas OIC-CET main office is at 516 E. Alisal St., with the automotive training site at 80-88 Chamberlain.

The Gilroy OIC-CET is at 8111-B Swanston Ln. The San Jose centers are at 425 S. Market St., and 57 N. Sunset Ave.

Music Series Season Tickets Now Available

only American violinist among the top laureates in Moscow's prestigious 1970 Tschaikovsky Competition. On Sunday, May 11, famed mezzo-soprano Frederica von Stade will close the series with a dazzling recital of concert and operatic arias. Miss von Stade has appeared in concert and opera around the world and is one of the outstanding artists of the day.

An added bonus to members will be an invitation to attend the Society's annual FALL-DE-ROL to be held on Friday, October 4, at the Beach Club in Pebble Beach. This gala event will follow the pattern of prior years, with the performance of highly talented singers, dancers and musicians in a program of popular and lighter classics designed for fun and easy listening. Hot and cold refreshments will be served along with complimentary wine. There will be a $5.00 charge per person for this event which was preferred by the Board as an alternative to raising season ticket prices in the face of ever increasing costs of artists and production. There will be no charge, however, at the Pebble Beach gates for those showing their invitations on that evening.

Season ticket prices continue to remain at $21.00, $18.00 and $15.00. All concerts will be held at Carmel's Sunset Auditorium. For further information regarding the series please telephone 624-2085.

Season tickets have now been made available to those of the general public interested in subscribing to the current series of the Carmel Music Society. This action was taken at a recent meeting of the Society's Board of Directors, according to Miss Angie Machado, President.

Duo-pianists Richard and John Contiguglia will appear at the first concert, scheduled for Saturday, October 19. Recognized as one of the leading two-piano teams of our time, they have received much acclaim for their extraordinary recordings including one remark-able novelty, the Beethoven Ninth Symphony in a transcription by Franz Lizt. The second concert will feature the Aman Folk Ensemble, an amazingly versatile company of 50 dancers, singers and musicians in a unique program of splendidly costumed dances and folk songs from Central Europe. They will appear on Saturday, January 18, 1975.

The third concert, Tuesday, February 25, should prove a delight to all those interested in superb woodwind playing. The acknowledged master of the flute, Jean-Pierre Rampal will appear in a program designed to display his amazing musicianship and flawless technique.

THIRD ANNUAL

Your Help Needed For Military Appreciation

Dear Friends of the Military:

Several civic-minded organizations on the Monterey Peninsula have joined together to bring to the military the third annual "Military Appreciation Week" with a special welcome to the 7th Division and DLI. The week planned is for October 6 through the 13th, culminating in an Old-Fashioned Picnic at the Monterey County Fairgrounds on Sunday the 13th.

We need the services of your organization. This effort is of such magnitude that no one or two organizations can organize this tremendous event alone. During the week there will be special sales by the merchants and sports play-offs between cities and military installations. On Sunday there will be championship sporting events, youth activities, a free barbecue and live entertainment.

No civic-minded organization or business should be left out. This is an opportunity for many groups to work together for the community. Some organizations who are already involved: Seaside and Marina Chambers of Commerce, NCOA, Seaside Post 591 and Marina Post 811 American Legions, Seaside and Marina VFW, Knights of Columbus, Fort Ord, DLI, Navy Postgraduate School and Coast Guard.

Our next meeting of the committee to plan Military Appreciation Week will be announced shortly at the Seaside American Legion on Del Monte in Seaside. A no-host lunch will be served. We cordially invite you to attend. For more information, call me at the Chamber of Commerce.

Sincerely yours,

Verlaine K. Crawford
Executive Director

P.S. We will need donations, but we also need physical participation on Sunday, Oct. 13. We need to personally welcome the military and their families.

Hypocrisy is a harsh word. No one likes to be called a hypocrite, especially a politician. But one often wonders what goes through a person's mind when he or she advocated a certain something which is 180 degrees away from that which is similar in nature and which was advocated by this same person at another time.

Take Julian Camacho for example. He has been one of the foremost critics of the Nixon administration, abhorring their politics, their Watergates, their inconsistencies and their questionable integrity. He admonished his opponent, Congressman Burt Talcott for being on Nixon's team." In general, he gives the impression that he can't stand dishonesty, and wouldn't be connected with anyone who is.

Yet, he welcomed with open arms Senator Ted Kennedy who campaigned for him in this area last week. The same Ted Kennedy whose secretary drowned in an accident in which he was involved sometime around midnite when only the two were together. The same Ted Kennedy who admitted that it was some eight hours later before he could collect his wits and report the accident to the authorities.

We have no reason to disbelieve Kennedy's account of what happened, just as we have no reason to disbelieve Richard Nixon's account of how he was or was not involved in the Watergate coverup. We find it difficult to understand Camacho's insistence that Nixon should never have been pardoned because now "we will never know what really happened because the pardon has in effect halted investigation into the matter."

But he never clamored for a full investigation of Kennedy's story of Chappaquidick. He never doubted, apparently, Kennedy's story of what happened. He forgot.

Ho Hum. Seems like the same old politics will prevail if Camacho is successful in unseating Talcott. Just a different ox being gored.

President Ford is not getting credit for one of the great contributions of this century. Granted, he did not mean it to be a contribution, but he did a truly outstanding job of exposing something our fine society of hypocrites has been trying to cover up for many years, on a scale to dwarf even Watergate.

He demonstrated to the whole world beyond any shadow of any doubt that we do indeed have multiple standards of justice in America, that the concept of equal justice under the law is a farce. Now that the truth is out, and it is too late for the President to retract it, some good use should be made of it.

Three choices are open. No. 1, an attempt could be made to actually make equal justice a reality, an attempt that probably would not succeed during any of our lifetimes.

No. 2, all mention of the term equal justice could be removed from our Constitution and our law books, and also from our school text books so as not to confuse school children.

No. 3, we could continue our present system, and adjust the wording to match the reality. Everything about justice could be re-written to clearly explain that various types of people are entitled to various types of jusstice, depending on financial and family background, business associations, inclination to contribute heavily to political campaigns, color, etcetera.

New Director In Peace Corps

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- William E. Jones, 44, of Washington, D.C., a foreign service information officer with the U.S. Information Agency, has been named director of the Peace Corps in the Eastern Carribbean, announced ACTION Director Mike Balzano.

A resident of the nation's capital for the past three years, Jones will direct the daily operations of Peace Corps volunteer programs in seven countries in the Eastern Carribbean.

The are Barbados, Montserrat, St. Lucia, St. Kitts-Nevis, Antigua, Grenada and St. Vincent. Peace Corps headquarters for the area are in Barbados.

Jones will supervise the training and work of 173 Peace Corps volunteers serving in teacher training, special education and vocational training, health, engineering, handicrafts, occupational therapy and agricultural cooperatives. Peace Corps volunteers have served in the Eastern Carribbean since 1962.

The Peace Corps is part of ACTION, the federal agency for volunteer service established by President Nixon in july, 1971 to administer volunteer programs at home and overseas. About 7,300 Peace Corps volunteers are serving in 69 developing nations.

ACTION's domestic programs are Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), Foster Grandparent Program, Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), Active Corps of Executives (ACE), ACTION Cooperative Volunteers and University Year for ACTION.

Jones' professional career at USIA included nine years of overseas service in Nigeria, Zambia and Ethiopia, where he worked closely with Peace Corps volunteers and staff members.

Born in Detroit, Mich., he grew up in Cleveland, Ohio, where he graduated in 1949 from Central High School. He is the son of Jonathan L. Jones of Orlando, Fla. and the late Mrs. Mary Jones.

Jones is a graduate of Morehouse College in Atlanta, Ga., where he received a bachelor's degree in political scinece in 1953. He received his master's degree in library science in 1955 from Atlanta University, and served in the Army for two years.

Following his formal education, Jones worked as an assistant branch librarian at the Brooklyn Public Library in Brooklyn, N.Y. Later he was chief librarian at Owen Junior College in Memphis, Tenn. from 1956 to 1962.

In November, 1962 he joined USIA and served as a program officer in Nigeria and cultural affairs officer in Zambia and Ethopia.

Upon his return to Washington in 1971 he served USIA as a career and personnel counselor. In 1973 he was detailed to the Office of African Programs, Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs, at the State Department.

Jones is married to the former Arlette Cottet-Doumoulin, who previously served with the United Nations on the staff of the Refugee Council and the Economic Commission for Africa in Ethopia.

While living in Washington, Jones has been active in the Shiloh Baptist Church and the Morehouse Alumni Club. He is a member of the American Foreign Service Assn. and a former member of the American Library Assn. and Tennessee Library Assn.

Black General Receives Medal

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger awarded the Department of Defense Distinguished Service Medal to Air Force Lieutenant General Daniel James, Jr. in a Pentagon ceremony yesterday afternoon. The medal is the highest non-combat award which can be presented to a member of the Armed Forces.

General James, 54, became Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs) or March 31, 1970 and became Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs) on April 20, 1973. He will become Vice Commander of the Military Airlift Command at Scott Air Force BASE, Illinois on September 1, 1974.

A veteran of over 31 years service in the Air Force, General James was cited for, "His sensitivity, concern for personal individual rights, his recognition of the differences and similarities inherent in all people and his insistence on excellence as a personal and professional goal have earned him the respect and admiration of servicemen and women and the public, particularly minority groups."

In recognizing General James' work during Operation Homecoming, the citation to the General's award read, "Acutely aware of the emotions and sensitivities of U. S. personnel Missing In Action or Prisoners of War in Southeast Asia, General James was not only instrumental in planning for the return of U. S. POWs during Operation Homecoming, but personally directed the public affairs efforts to assist the POWs in their return to their homes and duty."

ARMY RECRUITER

Young people who want to try their hands -- and voices-- at operating a radio get their chance in the TODAY's ARMY.

TODAY'S ARMY presently has a number of openings for radio operators. This electronic skill that can be acquired as radio operator could prove extremely helpful as the job market becomes increasingly oriented to telecommunications.

A radio operator in TODAY'S ARMY performs much the same duties as a civilian operator. Many civilian radio operators work in the area of air transportation, serving as a link between the pilot and the personnel at the ground station.

As an Army radio operator, a young man or woman would be responsible for setting up and maintaining equipment, operating generators and transmitting and receiving messages.

TODAY'S ARMY operators also decode Morse Code messages and, when required, apply anti-jamming devices to he communications network. Radio operators also have the opportunity to become supervisors and oversee the work of a team of operators.

If an individual comes into TODAY'S ARMY already skilled as a radio operator, he or she may be eligible for accelerated promotion under the "STRIPES FOR SKILLS" option. Under this option, the individual may also be sent to the location of his choice, provided a vacancy exists. Radio operators may volunteer for sinnts of two, three or four years, under a variety of options. If they qualify, they may serve part of their enlistment in places like Europe, Hawaii and the Canal zone, or in locations throughout the United States.

For additional information on a career as a radio operator in TODAY'S ARMY, give us a call at 372-4742 or stop by our offices at 431 Webster St. in Monterey.

For 1974-75

United Fund Committee Heads Named

James C. Glasser, Jr., chairman of the 1974-75 United Fund campaign, recently released the names of the six committee heads that will help him guide this year's drive for donations.

The vice-chairman for the campaign is Mike Rombold, manager of San Diego Federal Savings and Loan Association of Monterey. Rombold, though only a peninsula resident for one year, has given many hours of service to our community. He is presently a director of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce. He also has previous experience working on United Fund drives, seeking contributions from the San Diego business community.

The Advance Gifts Chairman is attorney Carmel Martin, Jr., of Hudson, Martin, Ferrante & Street. Martin, a former Monterey city councilman, currently serves on the Monterey County Park Commission. Historicallly, this committee has collected a major portion of the total donation; in 1973 this amount was $80,000 of the final $252,000 figure.

Doug Forzani, associated with Del Monte Realty Company, willhead the Business Division. Forzani was a member of the United Fund Committee that sponsored the recent highly-successful Pebble Beach Concours d' Elegance. He has also been very active in youth sports organizations including Little League Baseball and Pop Warner Football.

The general Manager of CTB McGraw-Hill, Dr. David Evans, will act as chairman of the Corporate-Personnel Division. Dr. Evans is also a new resident to the Monterey area, but has already extended his time and experience to local service organizations, presently as a director of the Monterey Peninsula Red Cross and the Council of Monterey Bay, Inc.(COMB).

Superior Court Judge Ralph Drummond will lend his abilities to the Professional Division. Judge Drummond's many civic actitities include directorhsips on the board of the Salvation Army, Alcoholism Council, Lyceum, and the Monterey Foundation.

The sixth member of this highly qualified team is Mrs. Jean Thomas, a first lady of community service work on the Monterey Peninsula. Mrs. Thomas has served our United Fund for many years, for this campaign she will again head the Residential Division.

Glaser, in making the announcement, stated, "I am delighted that so many civic leaders have come forward to volunteer their time and expertise and spearhead this year's campaign. With such an organization, I feel confident that we will surpass the 1973-74 record donation."

The Monterey Peninsula United Fund drive will financially benefit fourteen (14) local, non-profit, charitable agencies, including the Alcholism Council, Boy's Club of American-Seaside, Boy Scouts-Monterey Bay Area Council, Family Service Agency, Gateway Center for the Retarded, fort Ord Youth Center, Girl Scouts-Monterey Bay Council, Handicapped Activities Unlimited,

Destroyer Escort Duty

Navy Seaman Gary L. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Jones Sr. of 1837 Helena St., Seaside, Calif., is serving aboard the destroyer escort USS Bowne, winner of Destroyer Squadron 20's Battle Efficiency "E" for Excellence Award.

Ships nominated for the annual award are judged on operational performance, departmental inspection results and an overall evaluation of training and readiness.

As a crewmember, Jones was commended for his contribution to the initiative and professional competence displayed aboard the vessel. He is homeported at Charleston, S.C.

Aformer student of Monterey Peninsula College, Monterey, Calif., he joined the Navy in November 1972.

Warrant Officers working at Gateway Center

At Gateway Center

Warrants Hard At Work

Gateway Center for the Retarded has recently been the scene of "weekend duty" for the Warrant Officer Association, Monterey Bay chapter. Some 25 members of this Fort Ord-based organization have volunteered their weekends to clean-up and garden Gateway's "backyard", approximately 2 acres of land that is owned by the center, and is adjacent to its present location at 1664 Hilby Avenue in Seaside. The officers plan to continue this program to keep the lot cleared of rubble and annual growth that creates a fire hazard.

Warrant Officer Kenneth E. Evans, the association's president, says that "our group is giving the center the type of assistance that it would not normally receive from public or private charity-oriented organizations. We want to help Gateway in any way we can."

In addition to their physical efforts, the association has donated $400.00 to the general operation of the center. Also, the officer's families are involved, helping with the gardening and currently planning other fund-raising events to benefit Gateway.

Former warrant offccers or anyone interested in helping with the project should write to Warrant Officers Association, P.O. Box 402, Fort Ord. Gateway Center is a United Fund agency.

Jr. Fellows Working In Washington,D.C.

WASHINGTON--Debbie Royster and Robin Ramona Cothran share many similar qualities.

They're black. They're intelligent and they are highly motivated high school graduates who are working with the U.S. Labor Department this summer under the Federal Junior Fellowship Program.

For both, it's their first year as "Junior Fellows." This summer the program has about 63 participants, including 17 new high school graduates.

The Washington, D.C. pilot program lets the young people earn as they learn.

To enter the program, youths must be in the upper 10 percent of their graduating class, be accepted for enrollment in college, need employment to help meet college expenses, and have an interest in pursuing a federal career.

New "Junior Fellows" earn $2.73 per hour, the wage rate for a GS-2 federal employee. They are assigned to work with professional, technical and administrative employees in fields related to their educational objectives.

Ms. Royster says, "I believe many of the problems in our society are due to poor communications between people." She will enter Boston University this fall to begin studies in the field of communications.

She describes her work experience in the Office of Information, Publications and Reports as "invaluable."

"Every day is a learning experience in the many facets of communication and particularly in how a federal agency communicates with the general public, as well as special efforts to reach backs and other minorities," Ms. Royster says.

Ms Cothran, who enters Howard University in the fall to begin studies in pyschology, has been assiged to the Labor Department's Office of Equal Employment Opportunity.

One of her duties is to serve as liaison person pertween the Labor Department and the youths in its Summer Aid Program.

Ms. Cothran takes her work assignments seriously and is described by her supervisors "as a 16-year-old who acts like a 35-year-old."

Both Ms. Royster and Cothran are quick to add that their work experience is challenging and rewarding, and it is a blessing in the needed income to meet college expenses.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Fred G. Clark calls the program "an investment in our future," pointing out that the federal government in dealing with tomorrow's needs will require highly qualified and dedicated young people.

This program has an unusual potential to help bring into government such talented youth, he added.

Program participants are allowed to work during the summer and other school vacation periods. Generally, they average about 680 hours per year.

Campus Decision Relaxed

Senator John V. Tunney, having urged the Department of Defense to reinvestigate its decision to psychiatric and psycho-therapeutic services available to Champus recipients, said today that the department has relaxed its previous position.

Champus, which provides medical services to the military and their dependents, recently announced severe cutbacks in the funding allowable for treatment of autistic and other emotionally disturbed individuals. In this action, the Department of Defense reduced the allowable psychiatric and psychotherapeutic care to 120 days in an in-patient facility and 40 out-patient visits per fiscal year. According to both the American Medical Association and the American Psychiatric Association this would prove devastating to the hopes for recovery of emotionally disturbed children.

As a result of the widespread protest, the Department of Defense announced new regulations which would allow emotionally disturbed children to be re-evaluated after 120 days and given treatment is necessary. The 40 visits per fiscal year policy has been changed to 60 visits

GOOD SPEED?

According to the Department of Transportation, cars obtain the best gas mileage in the range of 50 to 55 miles per hour, while speeds above and below that range reduce fuel economy. All those in favor of saving gas, raise your right foot!

Tips on Slashing Present Living Costs

In the battle to slash living costs and save fuel supplies, homeowners can hold gas and electric bills to a minimum by preparing now for the winter, PG&E advises.

Proper care of home heating equipment and adequate insulation offer ways to get the most out of each energy dollar.

Heating costs can be cut as much as 45 per cent by weatherstripping and proper insulation of walls and ceilings. Because heat rises, cracks and crevices under the roof usually are responsible for the greatest heat loss. Attic floors should have 6" of insulation to provide protection from the cold. Insulation batts tacked inside sloping rafters also will help prevent heat loss.

All cracks or excess space around doors and windows should be sealed with felt or metal stripping. Sweeps will keep cold air from entering along the bottoms of doors.

An efficient heating system can save fuel and keep home heating costs down. PG&E offers these tips:

1. Clean heating equipment thoroughly, removing dust, lint and other obstructions from all accessible parts. Clean or replace dirty filters that make the furnace work harder to provide heat. (Turn off thermostat and all blower controls before cleaning.)

2. Heating system ducts should be checked for air leaks, especially around the connecting joints. Leaking warm air can be costly, but usually leaks can be repaired with cloth adhesive tape. Where exposed to cold air, heating ducts should be wrapped with insulation.

4. Move furniture or rugs that block hot or cold air registers and reduce furnace efficiency.

5. Set thermostat at 68 degrees and leave it, except for turning it down when you leave home or go to bed. Turning up the thermostat does not produce more heat; it merely keeps the furnace operating longer, wasting fuel and increasing your fill.

As the weather turns cold, let "close it" become your rule of thumb. Close up unused rooms, and close the heating vents into those rooms. Close the damper when the fireplace is not in use so heat does not escape up the chimney. Keep all exterior doors--and those to garage, attic and basement--tightly closed to keep heat indoors where it is needed.

To present further heat waste use hot water efficiently.

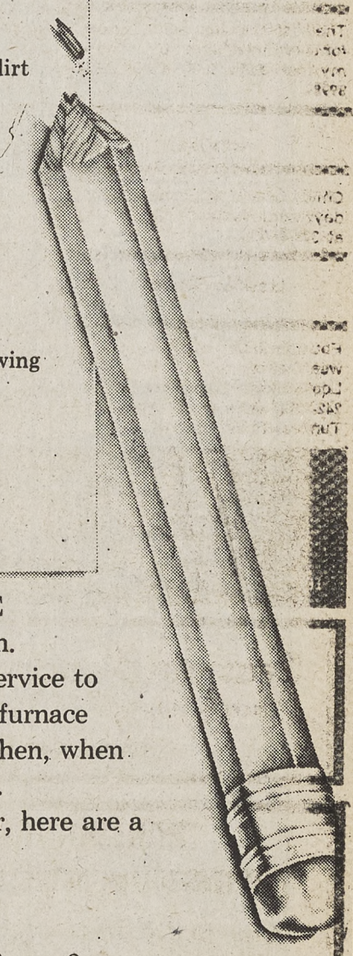
A "YES" ANSWER TO ANY OF THESE QUESTIONS MAY MEAN YOUR GAS FURNACE NEEDS HELP.

YES NO
☐ ☐ 1. Are you concerned about heavy black dirt streaks on walls surrounding room registers even though filters are changed regularly?
☐ ☐ 2. Do your furnace burners have a yellow (rather than blue) flame?
☐ ☐ 3. Is the front of your furnace blackened by what appears to be soot?
☐ ☐ 4. Do you have difficulty, even after following furnace manufacturer's instructions, changing your furnace's air filters?
☐ ☐ 5. Do you smell the odor of gas near your furnace?



If you answered "YES" to question #5, call PG&E immediately. A service-person will respond and check the situation.

For anything else, call a qualified furnace repair service to inspect your heating system, and make sure that your gas burners, furnace air openings, and wall or floor furnaces are free of dirt and lint. Then, when properly serviced, your furnace will be safe, efficient and economical.

While you're thinking of home economy for winter, here are a few more questions:

Does your attic floor have 6" of insulation?
Are your doors and windows weatherstripped?
Do you close your fireplace damper when it's not in use?
Do you keep your thermostat at 68°, or lower?
Do you close your draperies at night, and leave them open during the day?

If the answer was "YES" to these questions—you're using energy wisely.

IRS Makes Attempt To Correct Records

San Francisco, CA -- Questionnaires from the Internal Revenue Service are in the mail to over 175,000 married taxpayers in northern California.

The questionnaires are an effort to correct IRS records which reflect discrepancies between taxpayers' names and social security numbers, according to F.L. Browitt, IRS director in San Francisco.

"In processing joint income tax returns," Browitt said, "we have found many instances where a spouse's social security number does not agree with our records. To process tax returns correctly and to insure that we have only one account for each taxpayer, we need to make sure social security numbers are valid."

Browitt said in many cases a spouse may have entered a wrong number or may be using a name different from that shown on records of the Social Security Administration.

To correct the discrepancies, the IRS Service Center at Fresno is mailing questionnaires to those taxpayers whose social security numbers are in question.

"I want to emphasize that the receipt of a questionnaire is no cause for concern," Browitt said. "The questionnaires are not notices of audit, nor are they indications of any IRS investigations. They serve no purpose other than to help us to correct our records. Taxpayers who receive them do not need to contact an IRS office. If they simply follow the instructions on the questionnaire, complete the attached form and return it to the Fresno Service Center, we can take the corrective action."

The IRS will also work with the Social Security Administration to have accurate social security cards issued to those taxpayers who require them. Taxpayer contact with the Social Security Administration will not be necessary.

The Development of Africa

ANN ARBOR---About the year 1878 less than 10 per cent of African territories were under European rule.

By 1900 the whole of Africa had been conquered by the imperialist powers of Europe. Only Abyssinia (Ethiopa) and Liberia retained some sort of fragile independence.

This development is described as "perhaps the greatest historical movement" of modern times by Prof. G. N. Uzoigwe of The University of Michigan in his new book, "Britain and the Conquest of Africa: The Age of Salisbury."

Published by the U-M Press (416 pp., $14), the book represents the first effort by a historian of African origin to formulate a general interpretation of the period in which the nations of the western world extended their political, economic, and cultural influence over Africa and over large parts of Asia.

Prof. Uzoigwe, a member of the U-M history department since 1970, was born in Nigeria and earned his doctorate at Christ Church, Oxford. He taught at Makerere University in Uganda and is the author of "Revolution and Revolt in Bunyoro-Kitara" and "Anatomy of an African Kingdom: A History of Bunyoro-Kitara" as well as other works in African historv.

The author focuses on Britain as the premier imperialist power of this age of conquest, but also takes into consideration the general problems of European international politics. Nearly a decade of research in British and African archival sources has helped him explain the "complex and oftentimes contradictory" motives behind the European conquest of Africa.

Robert, the Third Marquis of Salisbury, who served as British prime minister and foreign secretary for most of the crucial period between 1878 and 1902, becomes the key figure in this study:

imperialist drifting against his better judgment to acquire African territories and maintain the integrity of the empire, but rather as the eminence grise of European imperialism, sophisticated, sensible, practical, level-headed, cleverly adjusting to the realities of historical developments as befitted one who saw himself as the 'trustee of the British Empire,' " Uzoigwe writes.

"He invites comparison with Bismarck in scope although the latter had not the same interest in European expansion. In British imperial history this period may rightly be called the 'Age of Salsibury' for he largely shaped---albeit in a quiet sort of way---the character of British expansion overseas. Indeed Salisbury's claim to historical fame lies not in foreign policy so-called but in his management of the conquest of Africa."

Prof. Uzoigwe takes up the character of African resistance to the European intrusion, for example the defeat fo Mahmadou Lamine at the battle of Toubakouta in 1887 during the struggle for control of the Niger, and the annihilation of the Tukolor army at the battle of Youri in 1891. He also shows how the foundations were laid for the modern nation-states of West, East, Central and North Africa, and deals with many fundamental historical issues essential to a thorough comprehension of developments in 20th century Africa and to a certain extent 20th century Europe. He contends, basically, that Britain conquered Africa because it won the game of collaboration.

"Salisbury, whose name hitherto has appeared in small print in the roll call of imperialists, emerges no longer clad in the garb of the lugubrious and reluctant

Adult Art Classes Open Fall Term

Beginners, intermediate and advanced students interested in drawing and painting in various media are invited to join the Adult Art classes conducted by Mr. C. Y. Lee, M.A. from Univ. of California, under the Pacific Grove and Monterey Adult Schools.

Elements of art, color and design, techniques in drawing, watercolor, oil and acrylic paintings are taught in the evening sessions. He has taught the P.G. Adult Art Class since 1957 and the Fremont Class since 1972. For more information please call mr. Lee at 394-2965, Mr. Heyl, the Principal at P.G. at 373-4951, or Mr. Anderson, the Director of Adult School at 649-7336 or 649-7386.

Buying Tips

SACRAMENTO -- If you see ads offering three (or four) rooms of furniture at a low price, or three (or four) rooms of carpeting at a low price, the office of State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger says be cautious.

First, examine the ad to see what furniture, or how many yards of carpet are being offered. Three rooms of furniture may only include an inexpensive dinette table and four chairs, an inexpensive and small sofa and coffee table, and a headboard and dresser, or it may include, but rarely does, all the furniture you need.

California law does not allow the seller to show pictures of more furniture than he offers at an advertised price unless he clearly and conspicuously states in the ad the furniture that is not included. This law is sometimes violated.

Contact the office of the Attorney General if you see such a violation.

As for carpeting, such ads undoubtedly tell you the maximum yards allowed. Measure your room, add 5-10 percent for waste and see if their three rooms match your needs.

Remember that the companies advertising rooms of furniture and carpets usually advertise their cheapest products and will try to sell you their more expensive products when you enter the store.

WASTERS?

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) says Americans throw away 360 million tons of waste each year -- more than one and a half tons for every man, woman and child. Disposing of it costs $3.1 billion a year. The annual waste includes 71 billion cans, 38 billion bottles and jars, 4 million tons of plastic, 35 million tons of paper, 7 million cars and trucks, and over 7.5 million TV sets.
